

STEPHEN SEDGWICK

Stephen Sedgwick anchors CNBC Europe's Today's Business and is a market reporter for its flagship programme Squawk Box Europe. Stephen is also CNBC Europe's OPEC reporter, covering major meetings and interviewing top OPEC oil ministers, non-OPEC ministers and heads of bodies such as the IEA and EIA.

Prior to joining CNBC Europe Stephen worked for the UK Press Association on the City desk and at Dow Jones on the European markets desk. At Dow Jones, Stephen regularly broke market moving stories and was a contributor to the Wall Street Journal Europe.

Before his career in journalism, Stephen spent eleven years trading in the financial markets, specialising on equity and bond market derivative products. In 1988, Stephen joined Dresdner Kleinwort Wasserstein (formerly Kleinwort Benson Securities) and worked as an equity option marketmaker before moving on to Credit Lyonnais where he became Head of the London option marketmaking team on Liffe. Stephen studied Politics at the University of London, with a focus on world economic development, IMF, World Bank and WTO, and journalism at the National Council for Training Journalists.